STEVEN NEWBERRY DEAN'S COLUMN

As we approach the end of another program year and look forward to the summer, an end-of-the-season social event for members of the AGO is planned at the home of Glen Douglas (Sunday, April 28. 5pm) with the Aeolian Manor Organ. Plan to celebrate with your colleagues, enjoy food and beverage, and hear a short program on Glen's magnificent house organ. I hope to see each of you there. Additionally, I encourage you to make special note of our two engaging programs in the fall: Daryl Robinson's recital at St. Philip Presbyterian Church (Sep 24, 7:30pm), and the Church Music Workshops at Christ Church Cathedral with Peter Dubois and Robert Simpson (Oct 26 10:30am-Noon).

It is also time to renew dues for the 2013-14 year. A form is included in this newsletter and is posted on the chapter's website. Please help your officers by responding in a timely fashion. It would be helpful if all renewals were received by the due date – July 15.

In the meantime, I hope each of your summers will be one of renewal, study, and vacation.

All Best,

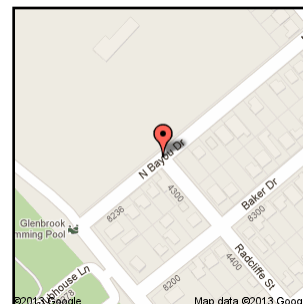

Steve

TEXAS EVENT

CHURCH MUSIC INSTITUTE

The Church Music Institute will convene its June 7-8 workshop at First Presbyterian Church in Fort Worth with a particularly fine array of organists and church musicians, including Dr. John Weaver, emeritus of Madison Avenue Presbyterian in New York City, John Neely of Westminster Presbyterian in Dayton, OH, and the Dean of the Dallas AGO, Benjamin Kolodziej. There will be choral and organ repertoire sessions as well as service playing with Dr. Weaver.

Session topics include:

- * Clergy/Musician Teams Who Plan Effective Worship
- * Congregational Outreach
- * The Best of New Choral and Organ Repertoire
- * Handbells in the Liturgy
- * Choral Techniques and Organ Service Playing
- * Resources for Small Choirs
- * Choral Programs that Grow and Last: Tips from the Pros

Other clinicians include Terry Price of Preston Hollow Presbyterian, Sueda Luttrell, Dr. Robert Mann, Dr. Charlotte Kroeker of the CMI board/staff, and a panel of area clergy and musicians who will discuss planning processes for effective worship.

For more information and registration: www.churchmusicinstitute.org or 214.751.7669. Early registration discounts are available.
